What is I-WORK?

The I-WORK Program is designed to assist students from the Pacific Rim (South Pacific & Far East) in obtaining a quality education at BYU–Hawaii. Its goal is to provide financial assistance to worthy members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (especially Returned Missionaries) so they can return home to their countries or regions debt-free and qualified to provide leadership in an international church, in civic and social affiliations, and within their families.

Principles of I-WORK at BYU–Hawaii

I-WORK is available to all international students* with a strong preference given to students from our target area—the Pacific Rim—attending BYU–Hawaii. It teaches responsibility and accountability. The program is equally supportive for both single and married students. It requires recipients to work and contribute to the cost of their education at BYU–Hawaii and it encourages returnability.

How can I-WORK help me in college?

The I-WORK Program is a unique and generous opportunity available only at BYU–Hawaii. The program offers a 50 percent grant and 50 percent forgivable loan. The loan portion is only repayable if the recipient chooses not to return to their home region following graduation from BYU–Hawaii (see application for complete details).

• No Student Loan Debt. Students attending BYU–Hawaii using I-WORK can finish college and return to their home region with no student loan debt.
• Benefits. I-WORK will help cover tuition, fees, housing and insurance costs for all recipients. Amount covered is based on need.
• For International Students. I-WORK is based on need and is available to all international students, with preference given to students from the Pacific Rim, who are accepted and enrolled at BYU–Hawaii. (Additional preference is given to returned missionaries.)
